Radio UNITED NATIONS NATIONS UNIES NACIONES UNIDAS

PROGRAMME SCHEDULE

4 FEBRUARY - 3 AUGUST 1985

ABOUT THIS SCHEDULE AND U.N. RADIO PROGRAMMES

Shortwave Broadcasts

For nine months of the year when the United Nations General Assembly is not in session, United Nations Radio broadcasts only on weekends (Fridays and Saturdays) in thirteen languages: Arabic, Chinese, English, French, Greek, Hebrew, Japanese, Portuguese, Russian, Somali, Spanish, Swahili and Turkish.

Effective 4 February 1985, on an experimental basis, until 3 August, United Nations Radio will broadcast six days a week: Monday through Saturday. This represents an increase of four hours of broadcast each week.

The additional transmissions are beamed to four target areas, namely, Europe, East, West, Central and North Africa, in English and French.

The magazine programme U.N. Radio Club (Thursdays 1915-1930 Hrs.) and its French language equivalent (Boîte Postale Vingt) is of special interest to listeners. It includes responses to listeners' questions and general information about any aspect of the United Nations.

United Nations Radio also acknowledges, with verification (QSL) cards, reception reports about its transmissions. Correspondence should be addressed to: United Nations Radio, Room 805, United Nations, New York, N.Y. 10017 (USA).

Taped or transcription programmes

Taped programmes from United Nations Radio are broadcast by stations in over 150 countries throughout the world. The day and time of these broadcasts may be ascertained from local stations concerned.

These programmes are produced and distributed in 25 languages: Afrikaans, Arabic, Bengali, Chinese, English, French, Greek, Hebrew, Indonesian, Japanese, Lingala, Pilipino, Portuguese, Russian, Serbo-Croat, Somali, Sotho, Spanish, Swahili, Thai, Tswana, Turkish, Urdu, Xhosa and Zulu.

NOUVELLE GRILLE DES PROGRAMMES DE LA RADIO DES NATIONS UNIES

Ondes courtes

Durant 9 mois, lorsque l'Assemblée générale n'est pas en session, la Radio des Nations Unies émet habituellement en fin de semaine, les vendredis et les samedis dans les treize langues suivantes: anglais, arabe, chinois, espagnol, français, grec, hébreu, japonais, portuguais, russe, somali, swahili et turc.

A partir du 4 février 1985, et ce jusqu'au 3 août 1985, la Radio des Nations Unies émet sur une base expérimentale, six jours par semaine du lundi au samedi. Ceci représente une augmentation de quatre heures de diffusion par semaine.

Ces nouvelles émissions, en anglais et en français, seront dirigées vers l'Europe, l'Afrique de l'Est, de l'Ouest, l'Afrique centrale et du Nord.

Le magazine "Boîte Postale Vingt" et son équivalent en anglais "Radio Club" sont d'un grand intérêt pour les auditeurs puisqu'ils répondent à leurs questions sur le système des Nations Unies.

La Radio des Nations Unies accuse réception par cartes "QSL" des rapports d'écoute qu'elle reçoit sur la qualité technique des transmissions.

Toute correspondance à ce sujet doit être addressée à: Radio des Nations Unies, Bureau 805, Nations Unies, New York, N.Y. 10017, Etats Unis d'Amérique.
